REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: Claims 1 and 9 are patentable over the prior art patents and printed publications because of the specific manufacturing method of a scanning optical system wherein the imaging lens system has to fulfill a specific condition with regard to the width of the reflecting surface of the polygon mirror in the sub-scanning direction, the incident angle of the laser beam on the reflecting surface of the polygon in the sub-scanning direction, the distance between the reflecting surface of the polygon mirror and the first lens surface at the front end of the imaging lens system, and the radius of curvature of the first lens surface in the sub-scanning direction (referring to claim 1), or a specific condition related to all the above-mentioned parameters as well as to the radius of curvature of the second lens surface next to the first lens surface in the sub-scanning direction (referring to claim 9) and only then an anti-reflection coating is formed on the first lens surface so as to produce the scanning optical system. This serves to even improve light transmission efficiency through the imaging lens system and is not taught by the prior art of record alone or in combination.

Claims 2-8 and 10-16 are allowed because they are directly or indirectly dependent from claims 1 and 9 above.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

2. The prior art made of record, Debesis et al. (U.S. 5,841,463) discloses a method of manufacturing a laser print head by mounting a cylinder lens on a cylinder lens holder to be aligned with the laser array before applying an anti-reflection coating to the cylinder lens surface to achieve additional optical transmittance efficiency.

Yamaguchi et al. (U.S. 6,667,757), discloses a light scanning unit use in an image forming apparatus, wherein a reflection preventing film is provided on the lens surface of the imaging lens system is possible but with the risk that a profile irregularity of the lens surface is reduced and an optical performance would be affected.

Ando (U.S. 5,680,242) discloses a scanning optical apparatus in which the coating of a reflection preventing film on the surfaces of the scanning lenses would reduce the loss of energy from the reflected laser beam as well as to improve the uniform exposure amount at the scanned area. However, Ando recommends using a laser beam with a polarization direction inclined by 45 degrees to reduce the light reflection such that the reflection preventing film is not needed to be provided on one or more transmission surfaces among the construction surfaces constructing the imaging lenses.

None of the above-mentioned prior arts teaches the claimed specific conditions at which the scanning optical system should attain before an anti-reflection coating is provided to the imaging lens surface.
